

Who owns Dainese motorcycles?

The company has been led by CEO Cristiano Silei since 2015. In 2022, The Carlyle Group acquired the stake held by Investcorp and became a majority shareholder in Dainese. Lino Dainese started the company in 1972 when he was 20, making protective motorcycle apparel in Molvena, Vicenza, Italy.

Who owns Dainese?

In 2022, The Carlyle Group acquired the stake held by Investcorp and became a majority shareholder in Dainese. Lino Dainese started the company in 1972 when he was 20, making protective motorcycle apparel in Molvena, Vicenza, Italy. The first article of clothing was a pair of motocross pants.

Why should you buy Dainese motorcycle clothing?

Dainese is the benchmark for those looking for men's motorcycle clothing and women's that combines style, safety, and comfort for every riding style: Racing, Sport, Touring, Urban, and Vintage. Our collection stands out for the high quality of materials and design, ensuring uncompromising protection in any weather condition.

How many patents does Dainese have?

Dainese has diversified its product range over the years to cover mountain biking, skiing and horse riding, often using the technologies developed for motorcycle racing. The Dainese Technology Center (D-Tec) develops protection and apparel-related technologies for the group companies and other applications. The company has registered 118 patents.

Dainese has been inventing motorcycling protectors since 1972, technological innovation to protect every rider. You'll find gear for track, road, and adventure, motorcycling products for all requirements.

Dainese: Clothing and Protection for Motorcycle, Mountain Biking, and Skiing for Maximum Safety Dainese is synonymous with excellence in sports safety and protection.

Motorcycle Gear Company Dainese Was Just Sold for Barely $1? Here's What's Happening Back in 2022, private equity firm the Carlyle Group made big news in the motorcycle world when it acquired ...

Lino Dainese, founder Lino Dainese started the company in 1972 when he was 20, making protective motorcycle apparel in Molvena, Vicenza, Italy. [9] The first article of clothing was a pair of motocross ...

Motorcycle clothing, sportswear and protective gear

From jackets to gloves, suits and accessories, find the ultimate motorcycle gear built for every riding style. Discover the Dainese collection!

New capital will support the Group's development strategy and accelerate product and technology innovation.

Dainese gets new owners. Arcmont and HPS take over the manufacturer, reduce debt by EUR190 million, and invest EUR30 million in the future of the brand.

The whole ordeal began when Carlyle Group acquired Dainese in 2022. According to Bloomberg, the purchase was funded with EUR285 million in senior notes underwritten by HPS ...

Dainese has officially entered a new phase of its long and storied history. After months of regulatory scrutiny and financial restructuring, the European Commission has approved the ...

Web: <https://www.thehibiscuscoast.co.za>